Prime Minister's Scholarships for Asia – Group

Awardees:

PMSA 2018 -19 Round 2

Lincoln University	Asian Agribusiness Summer School: China	15 candidates to undertake a programme studying Chinese language, culture, economy and institutional system. Students will be introduced to industry groups, including New Zealand and Chinese exporters in key agribusiness markets through field trips and business visits. Field trips will cover different parts of the supply chain, exposing students to small and large agricultural producers, food processors and retail.
Massey University	Bridging NZ and China	10 candidates to undertake a 6-week language learning and business experience at Peking University, Beijing, China.
University of Auckland	1+8 Consortia Programme with Pagoda Projects - Greater China	15 candidates will undertake this multi-city, '1 + 8 week' programme developed as a collaboration between the Universities of Auckland, Otago and Waikato, alongside Pagoda Projects Ltd. It consists of a guided week-long group project followed by an eight-week internship and focuses on language, culture and work-integrated learning spread across three destinations in mainland China and Taipei. With each city offering its own unique theme, the project aims to strengthen institutional relationships between New Zealand and Greater China whilst students enhance their international awareness, employability and language skills.
University of Canterbury	MGMT228 study tour to China	15 candidates to undertake a 6-week unique in-country cultural immersion and experiential learning opportunity in China. Students will study at Zhejiang Gongshang University. MGMT focuses on Chinese business practices and culture. Students participate in lectures and a second language promotion programme (SLPP) at Zhejiang Gongshang University in Hangzhou for three weeks, followed by 2 1/2 weeks of extensive business and cultural visits in Shanghai and Beijing. The learning outcomes focus on conducting business in China, with a specific focus on new export opportunity identification and development.
Massey University	Sustainable Fashion and Textile programme, New Delhi, India	8 Fashion / Textile Design students, and Creative Media Production students will undertake an 8-week study of sustainable fashion in India, as well as undertake collaborative projects with Fashion students in Indian fashion design programmes. NZ students will study Indian design influences, and production methods with artisans, designers and industry. Students from India and NZ will collaborate to explore solutions to issues identified in the unsustainable fashion supply chain. A documentary film of this Indian study-tour will be made, capturing the growing connections between NZ and India in education and industry, and improving international understanding of NZ tertiary education.
Te Whare Wānanga o Awanuiarangi	Indigenous Health and Entrepreneurship Opportunities – Ayurveda and Rongoa Māori	10 candidates will undertake a 6-week multi-disciplinary exploration of the growth and strength of Ayurveda in India – a traditional cultural practice which co-exists comfortably and successfully alongside the “western” medical model – and will give rise to insights that will support the resurgence of Rongoa Maori in New Zealand, not only for Maori people but for all New Zealanders.
University of Auckland	Reimagining India Programme	15 candidates will undertake a 4-week programme beginning with one week in Bangalore, then two weeks of experiential learning in Delhi, Jaipur and Mumbai - followed by a range of project-based work placements in social enterprises. Reimagining India seeks to highlight India's status as a re-emerging economy of immense global significance, thereby raising students' awareness of the relevance of India to their lives, studies and future careers. It uses India's cities and villages as the classroom – including the political capital, New Delhi; the commercial capital, Mumbai; and the technological capital, Bangalore.

Lincoln University	Asian Agribusiness Summer School: Indonesia	15 candidates to undertake a 4-week Summer School, Airlangga, Brawijaya and Bogor Agriculture Universities, Indonesia.
